COUNTY APPELLATIONS

SONOMA | MARIN | NAPA

SONOMA COUNTY

More than twice the size as neighboring Napa, Sonoma County overflows with wineries and grape varieties. Within this appellation's one million total acres, over 190 wineries make their home. Practically every variety of grape grown in California can be found somewhere in Sonoma County. Winemaking here is steeped in history, going back to the 1820s, when Franciscan monks first planted vineyards with the Mission variety

MARIN COUNTY

In some ways, Marin County is more like Burgundy, France than California. This coastal area, just north of San Francisco, is perhaps known more for its recreational and residential development and is not your typical wine making region. However, in this challenging cold climate viticultural area, there are a devout few committed to its success, especially with the finicky Pinot Noir grape.

NAPA COUNTY

'Land of Plenty' is what Napa meant to the region's original inhabitants, the Wappo Indians. This valley, snug between the Mayacamas and Vaca mountains in Northern California, claims some of the most expensive agricultural land in the world, producing wines of 'cult' status. The main ecological factor of the region is the cool wind and fog that is sucked in from San Pablo Bay during the afternoon, cooling the vines. Temperature fluctuations from north to south can vary as much as 15 degrees, even though the valley is only 30 miles long and five miles wide.
